

For Immediate Release - July 8, 2006

START ON THE POLE, FINISH ON THE PODIUM Texas World Speedway – November 17

COLORADO, July 8 / PRNews / - Faasst Performance Driving School, announced today that it is offering an additional SCCA accredited racing school date at Texas World Speedway, located in College Station, TX. Courses offered at the Faasst Performance Driving School are designed for SCCA club racers, time trial drivers, solo drivers, rally/hill climb drivers, young adults and owners of high performance street machines.

“Giving back to the SCCA and to the sport of amateur auto racing is a high priority for us. In addition to the benefits competitive racers experience, our program at Texas World Speedway will also introduce street drivers to a professional, fun and safe track experience.” said Judy Faass, owner of FAASST Performance Driving School.

That enthusiasm comes from her years of racing with the SCCA organization under a National License. Open wheels were her adrenaline source of choice as she piloted Formula Fords. During her racing career, Ms. Faass actively took a hands-on role in everything racing from vehicle preparation, set-up, gearing selection, to engine building. That hands-on experience was clear to the SCCA organization when they accredited the school's curriculum she developed.

Students do a lot more than just learn racing rules at a FAASST course according to those that have taken the classes, “I learned more in one day that I did attending two other schools. Your background in physics made understanding the concepts of torque and car dynamics a breeze,” said Octavio Calvillo a FAASST SCCA Student that attended a class at the MSR-Houston track driving his Porsche 911.

First time road racer, Chuck Ferran, was also thrilled with the results after his FAASST experience driving his Spec Miata at Sandia Motor Speedway in Albuquerque, NM, “I started the day with lap times around 1:08, and by the end of the day I shaved five seconds off my starting time. I raced in my first two regional events the next two days and with your continued tutoring I was able to start the Sunday event in the number three qualifying position. And, I had the second fastest lap time of the race (1:01.71).”

Popularity for the Faasst Performance Driving School continues to grow across the U.S. The school is enjoying the 2006 season at tracks located throughout the country as they continue to expand their presence in the market place.

About Texas World Speedway

Texas World Speedway was built in 1969 and is one of only seven Super Speedways of two miles or greater in the U.S. The facility includes a 1.8 mile road course, a 1.9 mile high speed road course, and the newly paved 2.9 mile course. All road courses may be run clockwise or counter-clockwise adding a degree of difficulty for the driver. Visit www.texasworldspeedway.com for more information and track details.

About FAASST Performance Driving School

Faasst Performance Driving School, based in Colorado Springs, Colorado, is an SCCA (Sports Car Club of America) accredited racing school and high performance driving school. Classes are offered at tracks located throughout the country. For more information visit: www.faaast.com or call 719-761-1372.

Faasst Performance Driving School, Inc.

4771 Barnes Road, Colorado Springs, CO 80917

Ph: 719-761-1372

registration@faasst.com

www.faaast.com

